R evolutions are born from the idea that change is necessary. Our industry is changing, moving ever so quickly as technology revolves in new directions daily. As floral artists we educate ourselves in many unique facets and diversities to stimulate our existence. The innovation of new ideas allows us to embrace previous history and look ahead to reinvent ourselves in a fast-paced marketplace.

This year in Boston, AIFD saw a great success of its National Symposium, "Revolution." Many thanks to all the committees, volunteers and presenters for their countless hours and talented expertise to create the Boston Symposium. AIFD applauds you!

This issue of Focal Points will be dedicated to remembering the spectacular educational events, competitions, laughs, networking and, of course, welcoming our newest AIFD members!

President’s Welcome
In the Wake of Revolution, Imagine What's Ahead...

How exciting to be a part of AIFD and the innovative plans for the year ahead! REVOLUTION in Boston was a sensual plethora of innovative thought, concept and design thanks to Ann Jordan AIFD, Janet Black AIFD and the designers and volunteers whose investment of time and talent made it all possible.

It was enlightening to return to Boston where I was inducted into AIFD in 1992. As a new member, I soon realized that becoming AIFD was not a matter of passing a test of skill. Instead, it was an entrance into a network of professionals from whom I could learn. The friends and contacts made since have greatly influenced my personal growth and passion for the industry. I never imagined myself returning to Boston to be installed as president, but this opportunity has allowed me to witness the enthusiasm and energy of those who guide AIFD from two different viewpoints. If you are an experienced member, I challenge you to remember your initial excitement and reinvest that energy into the organization. If you are a new member, I encourage you to volunteer immediately so that you can gain the most from your membership. Thanks to all of you for your contributions. This is a great time to be both AIFD and CFD!

High priority on the ‘to do’ list of Past President Tina Stoecker AIFD was an increase in volunteer participation. Under the intensive leadership of James Lowe AIFD this task force grew to unprecedented numbers and accomplishments. Let us each invite friends to participate this year, and continue to increase that effort.

David and Leanne Kessler AIFDs are on track for a fantastic 2011 symposium in San Francisco. IMAGINE the possibilities! Contact them now to be among the first on their volunteer lists. A personal goal of mine is to raise consumer awareness of AIFD. John Kittinger AIFD, Kevin Coble AIFD, Mandy Majerik AIFD and team did a great job with our AIFD public exhibition in Boston. We ask that every region present a public exhibition in their area this year.

Extreme education is our major focus. Joyce Mason-Monheim AIFD leads her team in developing an excellent program of online courses and hands-on workshops to provide training via the web, through our Education Partners, and in hands-on workshops scheduled to take place across the country. Anyone is eligible to participate in these classes. For more information on schedules, locations and class fees, visit www.aifd.org. Bill McKinley AIFD was honored for his intensive efforts for developing CFD. This dynamic new Certified Floral Designer program is the first step in a two part membership certification program, with AIFD accreditation as the ultimate goal for many. The focus of CFD is continuing education and the focus of AIFD is service within the industry. Visit our website for details. Encourage designers in your area to utilize this opportunity to expand their skills and help to elevate floral professionalism.

Tom Simmons AIFD and team are bringing the career development initiative to fruition. This exciting program is aimed at introducing high school and college students to the many opportunities for employment within the floral industry. A new cooperative effort between AIFD and the FFA National organization has been established.

To continue the forward progress of AIFD this year we need a grassroots effort by the membership. To begin:

1. Go online at www.aifd.org and post your contact info.
2. Download a press release (add your info) and submit to your local newspaper.
3. Write an article for your local newspaper about symposium; provide photos.
4. Contact local designers and direct them to the website to learn about CFD.
5. Contact a committee chair (listed online) and volunteer.
6. Tweet, post, and promote the great things that are happening with AIFD.

As we plan this year together, realize that I am not confused about my position as your president; I know that I am your spokesperson/representative within the industry—but YOU are AIFD! Exciting plans are developing that can be utilized by all of us in this grassroots effort to promote intensive floral education and consumer awareness across the country. Please take every opportunity to promote AIFD and CFD in your area. The REVOLUTION has begun... IMAGINE the possibilities... join the parade!

Celebrate life with flowers!

Sharon McGukin AIFD, AAF, PFCI
AIFD President
Sharon McGukin AIFD, AAF, PFCI, a freelance instructional designer and floral commentator from Carrollton, Ga., was installed as president of the American Institute of Floral Designers (AIFD) during the organization's 2010 National Symposium held in Boston, July 3-8. She succeeds Tina Stoecker AIFD, AAF, PFCI of Designs of the Times Florists in Melbourne, Fla. as the volunteer leader of the floral industry's leading organization in design education.

Installed as president-elect of AIFD was Tom Bowling AIFD, PFCI of Fairfield, Ohio. Ann Jordan AIFD, AAF of Studio Flora in Naples, Maine was elected and installed as AIFD’s new vice president. John Kittinger AIFD of Lexington, Ky. will take the role as the Institute’s secretary. Richard Salvaggio AIFD, AAF of Teleflora in Los Angeles will continue to serve as treasurer of the Institute.

Elected to serve a three year term as director-at-large is Ken Norman AIFD of Colony Florist in Midland Park, N.J. Michael Quesada AIFD of Kaleidoscope Flowers in Santa Barbara, Calif. was elected as the regional chapter representative for the Southwest Chapter and Mike Hollenbeck AIFD of Floral Artistry Espresso Garden LLC in Lewiston, Idaho was appointed to serve as the regional chapter representative for the Northwest Chapter.

Thomas C. Shaner, CAE, continues as AIFD's executive director.

"I volunteered and it was amazing to look at all of the different techniques used by the designers. I came to the show to see all of the talent from the designers and it is just amazing!"

Shawn Alexandra Graham of Soiree LLC

"At the end of the 2010 Philadelphia Flower Show I heard about AIFD's online courses. I did all five courses and came to Boston to do the hands-on testing. I felt so blessed to have been in an environment with so much creativity."
As the afternoon sun made for a beautiful day in Boston, AIFD embarked on an exciting opportunity to surprise families in need during the Blooms Over Boston public awareness campaign. The Blooms volunteer crew worked very hard and made 600 hand tied bouquets for distribution to Meals on Wheels and to surprise passersby.

On July 6, 200 bouquets were sent to the Boston Meals on Wheels organization for distribution. Lynde di Somma and I had the opportunity to accompany Robert Stanley, director of Meals on Wheels, as he delivered meals to the McCoy family. As we visited, we learned they have three generations of seniors under one roof—Mr. Robert McCoy (90s), Mrs. Joane McCoy (80s) and their daughter (60s), who was ill that day. We were privileged to hand deliver the flowers from AIFD and see first hand the joy it brought to the McCoys. Mr. McCoy especially loved the sunflowers as, at 90 plus years old, he still has a garden and enjoys growing many varieties of sunflowers.

On July 7, the Blooms Volunteer Crew handed out the other 400 bouquets to passersby in The Copley Place Mall. We received countless smiles and thank yous as we brightened their day with flowers. The live AIFD floral design demonstration was taking place during this time and was also a phenomenal success. The crowd showed much interest in the various techniques and was equally delighted to receive the flowers.

The great success of the Blooms Over Boston community service project is due to the over 75 design volunteers that pulled up their sleeves and turned out hundreds of beautifully designed hand tied bouquets. I can't thank them enough for all of their help.

The "Flash Mob" was a highly productive and fun way to get designers into the Blooms room. James Lowe AIFD and I waited outside the ballroom for a design program to finish and we grabbed as many people as we could to come to the Blooms room. We had music going and the energy was incredible. The designers were singing, laughing and having a great time. One Flash Mob created 120 bouquets in an hour and another Mob made 220.

It was a privilege and an honor being part of this project. I made many new friends and it was wonderful sharing the AIFD message and our love of flowers with the many grateful recipients.

The American Horticultural Society (AHS) announced recently that Jane Godshalk AIFD has been named the 2010 recipient of the Society’s Frances Jones Poetker Award. The award is one of 12 Great American Gardeners Awards that the Society presents annually to individuals, organizations and businesses that represent the best in American gardening. Each of the recipients has contributed significantly to fields such as scientific research, garden communication, landscape design, youth gardening, teaching and conservation. The Frances Jones Poetker Award recognizes significant contributions to floral design in publications, on the platform and to the public.

Godshalk is a member of the faculty of Longwood Gardens in Kennett Square, Pa., where she teaches floral design. She also lectures and teaches across the country, sharing her knowledge of horticulture and floral design with a focus on nature as inspiration and flower arranging as an art.

Godshalk is an artistic judge for the Garden Club of America (GCA) and her floral designs have been featured in books and magazines, including a column on “Eco-Friendly Floral Design” for the Pennsylvania Horticultural Society’s Green Scene magazine.

Among her numerous awards is the GCA Bonnlyn Martin Medal for “consistently innovative floral design.” She is active in the American Institute of Floral Designers and the World Association of Flower Arrangers, and has served on the boards of the GCA and the Philadelphia International Flower Show.

AIFD Leadership Profile

The AIFD Leadership Profile's goal is to highlight active members of our association. A great benefit of our organization is the ability to network and interact with fellow members. By profiling the leaders of the association, we want to offer you the opportunity to get to know the members of the National Board a little better.

We'd like to introduce you to Beverley Ireland AIFD, an AIFD board member.

AIFD: What is your job position and your specific responsibilities?

Beverley: I am the owner of Jasmine Creek Florist in El Cajon, Calif. and Mission Hills Florist in San Diego.

AIFD: As a member of the board, what are your personal goals for the advancement of AIFD?

Beverley: My personal goal for the advancement of AIFD is to inspire my employees to become AIFD members and to teach my clients the value of using a professional floral designer for their floral and event needs.

AIFD: Did you have a mentor or someone that inspired you to pursue the career you are in?

Beverley: My early mentor was Jerry Niedzielski AIFD, the first AIFD member from Nebraska.

AIFD: All floral designers have certain jobs they love to do - that they have special talents for. Do you have a favorite job you like doing?

Beverley: I am a "hands-on" flower shop owner, which means I am involved in every aspect of running two businesses. My special talent is working directly with my clients to ascertain their needs, give creative ideas, create proposals, develop product lists and oversee final production and installation.

AIFD: What issues are most important to you professionally?

Beverley: The issue closest to my heart is preserving the traditional flower shop model. My prospective clients are business and professional establishments. My goal is to provide those businesses and professional clients with a superior floral product and the highest level of personal service and satisfaction.

AIFD: What are some things you enjoy doing besides your work?

Beverley: At home, my time is spent with my husband, my garden and my pets. I also love football. When I get free time to go on vacation, I spend it in the Caribbean scuba diving.

AIFD: What advice do you have for aspiring AIFD members and/or floral designers?

Beverley: My advice to aspiring floral designers and those aspiring to AIFD membership is to take business classes along with your life-long study of design in general and floral design in specific if you plan to go into business for yourself or become an integral part of any floral organization.
You Need to Be Online!

AIFD has added a new photo feature to the online designer directory at www.aifd.org. If you would like to have your picture included with your online directory listing, please send a color headshot of yourself to AIFD Headquarters. The image must meet the following specifications:

1. It must be sent electronically as an attachment.
2. It must be in a .jpg/.jpeg format only.
3. It should be a professional-looking head-and-shoulders shot only. AIFD staff will crop out anything else.
4. It should be a full-color (preferred) picture.

E-mail the image to: erikawilliams@assnhqtrs.com. Make sure it is labeled with your first and last name.

EVEN MORE BLOOMS OVER BOSTON:
AIFD PUBLIC EXHIBITION - COPELEY SQUARE MALL

Wow!! If you missed it, you missed one of the most exciting events to wrap up the week. On July 7, the national marketing committee created a magnificent display of show stopping floral art generously donated by main stage presenters which included: Michael O'Neill AIFD, Jo Jarvis AIFD, Gregor Lersch, Dan Kotecki AIFD, Talmage McLaurin AIFD, Ty Leslie AIFD and Emilia Oliverio.

The live demonstrations was a crowd pleaser. Excitement and enthusiasm was generated by the floral techniques, which were demonstrated by Mandy Majerik AIFD, Deborah Gosier AIFD and Kevin Coble AIFD.

Fresh hand-tied bouquets were distributed to mall goers as well. In addition, the AIFD information booth, manned by John Kittinger AIFD, was on hand to deliver the Institute's message with several types of literature.

All in all, the event was a huge success! Plans are already in motion for a public exhibition in San Francisco in 2011. If you are interested in becoming involved with the AIFD public awareness campaign, contact Kevin Coble AIFD at kcobleleffleur@aol.com.
Would you like to lead a program at the 2011 AIFD National Symposium?

To consider your proposal we need as much information as possible. Visit www.aifd.org to download the entire application. For the best consideration:

Complete all questions with as much detail as you can. We request a detailed outline of your program, with sketches or pictures and a video clip. In this wonderful digital age, video cameras are everywhere. Think of this as an audition. Set up a simple scene, make a sample arrangement, relax, be yourself, talk about your program, explain it to the camera, make it come alive. Don't worry about the quality. We are looking for fresh ideas and your ability as a presenter. If you are going on stage in front of a thousand people, you can perform for the camera. The video should be approximately 20 minutes in length, no editing or music needed—just you and your program ideas. Your video clip may be in any format: VHS, mini-DV, DVD or a digital file uploaded to us. Contact David Kessler for more information at david@floraldesigninstitute.com.

Artist in Residence Program
Hosts Internationally Recognized Floral Designer at SUNY Cobleskill

On the evening of Monday, March 29, the SUNY Cobleskill chapter of Student American Institute of Floral Designers (SAIFD), in Cobleskill, N.Y., hosted a night of floral design instruction and fun. The SUNY Cobleskill campus welcomed internationally renowned floral designer, David Siders AIFD, as he created wonderful floral arrangements, and table top and party décor. Mr. Siders catered to an audience of about 40 students, campus faculty and community members, devoting time to illustrate several different styles and techniques dependent on his viewing demographic. Mr. Siders used fresh flowers, silk botanicals and hard good supplies, all donated by Experience and Creative Design, Bill Doran, and Seagroatt Riccardi.

The club offered spring cookies, flower cupcakes and lemonade during the show’s intermission and after the event. The club also put together a raffle of all the arrangements made by students during an instructional period earlier in the day and the floral designs that Mr. Siders used in his show.

SAIFD members were pleased with the success of the Artist in Residence program and are excitedly awaiting next year’s AIR event.

In 1910, a group of forward thinking florists created the world’s first floral network — FTD. From its inception, FTD has stood for innovation, leadership and quality across America and around the world. Our achievement is proudly embodied by one universally recognized symbol — the black and gold FTD Mercury Man. The FTD story would not be possible without the thousands of dedicated artisans who have created our tradition over the past 100 years. Thank you for your years of outstanding commitment and for helping make FTD what it truly is — part of the fabric of America.

Dahlia is a genus of bushy, tuberous, perennial plants native to Mexico, Central America, and Colombia. There are literally thousands of cultivated varieties of Dahlias which have been hybridized throughout the years. Dahlia hybrids are commonly grown as garden plants. Some specimens may provide an abundance of cut flowers for the home, while others give you the opportunity to make a bold statement in your landscape by pruning, disbudding and ultimately forcing the plant to create a few single, gigantic blooms.

Fast Fact: The Aztecs gathered and cultivated the dahlia for food and ceremonies, as well as decorative purposes, and the long woody stem of one variety was used for small pipes.

Dahlia plants range in height from as low as 12 inches to as tall as six-eight feet. The flowers can be as small as two inches or up to a foot in diameter. Dahlias are classified according to flower shape and arrangement of petals. Single-flowering dahlias have one row of petals, generally grow to three ft or less, and have flowers four inches or less in diameter. Types of single-flowering dahlias include: singles, orchid-flowering, anemone and collaretts. Single-flowering dahlias have a ring of evenly spaced petals. Orchid-flowering dahlias have similar to single-flowering types, but the ray florets curl up along the edges. Anemone flowers have an extra ring of small petals.

Double-flowering types have multiple rows of petals, grow taller, and have large flowers. Cactus dahlias have somewhat tubular shaped petals that curve backwards for over one-half of their length. Semi-cactus dahlias resemble cactus types but the petals are broad at their base and curve for less than half their length. Incurved cactus cultivars have petals that curl strongly towards the center of the flower.

There are two types of decorative dahlias: formal and semiformal. Formal decorative types have broad, regularly arranged, pointed or rounded petals that curve back towards the stem. Informal decorative dahlias have long, irregularly arranged, often twisted petals. Ball dahlia flowers are usually 3 1/2 inches in diameter and ball shaped or slightly flattened. The quilled petals are blunt or rounded at the tip. Pompons are smaller version of ball dahlias with flowers less than two inches in diameter.

When giving dahlias, mention that they are the meaning of elegance and dignity.
Congratulations to the 46 professional floral design artists from around the world who this year distinguish themselves with their induction into the American Institute of Floral Designers.

Life as the Symposium Program Coordinator by Janet Black AIFD

Emotional and on top of the world during my induction at the 2009 Symposium in Kansas City, I knew I wanted to get involved in this fabulous organization. So, I was truly excited when, Ann Jordan AIFD asked me to serve as the Program Coordinator for the “Revolution” Symposium 2010. What an opportunity to get my feet wet and experience new challenges. “Bring it on,” I thought. “That’s the AIFD way!”

Although I had a general idea how much work was involved, I didn’t completely realize the scope of this position. A preliminary meeting was scheduled with Ann, AIFD Executive Director Tom Shaner and key staff members at the Marriott Copley Place to review and confirm where functions would be assigned. One of the duties of the program coordinator is to act as the eyes for designers and committee chairmen unable to visit the facility before arriving in Boston. With camera and an expanding ruler in hand, I photographed and measured all key areas including: hallways, lobby, décor, elevators and the loading dock.

After reviewing the Symposium format and schedule, we determined the need for 13 programs, two dinners and two luncheons. New proposals, along with ideas not used at previous symposia, were perused and lists of possible programs were developed for a presentation to the National Board of Directors at their fall meeting in San Francisco. At the board meeting, the programs and designers were selected for the Boston Symposium and my job exploded! Acceptance and rejection letters needed to be sent, a timeline created for designers and information provided to AIFD headquarters to prepare the necessary contracts.

One major project was developing a reference source for designers. It was to be close to an “Everything You Need to Know... and More” manual. Requirements and deadlines were secured from committee chairmen regarding: workroom procedures, procurement, volunteer requests, requirements for the educational program book and staging information. Additional data included: hotel particulars, maps, room layouts, pictures, names of local vendors, shipping labels and more. The information was compiled and the “designer packet,” minus a decorative bow, was mailed by December 15. A holiday gift from me! The “Revolution” revolved quickly in the ensuing months with numerous tasks including the formation of symposium committees and seeking out “volunteers.” It was a huge undertaking made easier by gracious AIFD members willing to get involved. An enjoyable duty was participating in a “four hour food tasting” at Marriott, to determine the four meal functions. The food was scrumptious, but left me wondering if I would fit in any of my clothes for symposium!

As the details and time commitment increased by leaps and bounds, I found myself living and breathing symposium day and night. As the liaison for the hotel and contact for the designers there were numerous daily questions. There was always something new to address... coordinating a refrigerated truck for the loading dock, working with growers and local wholesale houses to organize shipments and deliveries, pursuing a walking tour, etc. Fortunately, my family was very supportive. My days were filled and I couldn’t wait to complete a task and move on to the next item on the full list. You might call me crazy, but I truly loved being involved and learning how the AIFD wheel revolves and spins.

Finally, the big day arrived and Symposium was underway. Plastic was rolled out to cover the workroom floor, floral products were surfacing on the loading dock, designers were arriving and committees were taking charge. Hooray, it was happening... my “daily to do lists” continued, I was up and running by 5:30 a.m., and everything was in motion.

The Partners Event opened with an impressive display of 68 colorful flags representing the state or country of every attendee. As the drum and bugles passed by I had tears in my eyes. What a fantastic kick off! I was so proud! I remember hoping I wouldn’t be teary-eyed at every event.

The week flew by and occasionally I wanted everything to slow down a bit so I could enjoy and absorb every event and detail. The designer’s presentations were beyond my wildest dreams. There were a few twists, Gregor Lersch surprised us by singing and playing the piano at a luncheon. Induction night was special for the new Inductees and AIFD members recalled their own Induction evening.

After the conclusion of the final program, a spectacular wedding program, the parade of flags returned and brought the stage presentations to a dramatic close. Now, the final evening would unfold. The week had flown by too quickly. With everything still on a schedule and just a few last minute details, I dressed quickly hoping that I had made the right decision on my “Revolution Red” dress.

The décor at the “Leadership Gala” Dinner Dance was exquisite and the ladies elegant, as Tina Stoeker AIFD passed the office of President to Sharon McGukin AIFD. As the orchestra played the last song, I was delighted, exhausted, and emotionally over taken by the moment, but I was thrilled to be instrumental in the “Revolutionary Journey.” I had the time of my life!

Thank you to each designer, contributor, attendee and volunteer for making Symposium successful and memorable. Special thanks to the National Board of Directors for believing in me and to my AIFD family... you’re the best!

GOLDEN WEST COLLEGE ANNOUNCES SAIFD CHAPTER

The Shirley Haas Chapter of Golden West College was acknowledged at the AIFD National Symposium in Boston July 2010, and is the first Student AIFD (SAIFD) chapter in Southern California. Golden West College is located in Huntington Beach, Calif.

The organization is recognized as the Shirley Haas Student Chapter of the American Institute of Floral Designers. Dr. Shirley Haas AIFD, a professor at Golden West College, was the founder and instructor of the Floral Design and Shop Management program until her passing in 1997.

The objective of SAIFD is to further the students’ education and participation in floral design through conventions at local and state levels, and at the National AIFD Symposium. SAIFD members are to uphold and practice a code of ethics in all professional and trade relations among floral designers and other artists in allied trades.
A Marketing Tip

by Jodi Duncan AIFD

The dog-days of summer are here in a big way. Record-breaking heat from coast-to-coast has everyone melting and miserable.

Why not offer your customers a "Cool OFF" with a Cash & Carry purchase?

Take customers into your cooler when they walk in for cash and carry bouquets. You might have a difficult time getting them out once they get in, but what's the worst that could happen? They might buy more flowers!

If you have a marquee, put it on your sign, "Can't take the heat? Come visit our flower cooler!"

A visit to the cooler is sure to bring relief to heat weary clients. And sales for YOU!

If they agree, take their picture with your camera phone and post it to Facebook or Twitter with a clever tagline, "We have the COOLEST customers!"

Sharing our coolers with customers is just one more way we can make sure that people have positive experiences with flowers.

Celebrating the Times of Our Lives

By Kelly and Brad Harnisch

Designing for a symposium program is truly one of the most gratifying professional experiences a designer can have. It is one of those experiences that really stretches a person beyond their comfort zone and forces them to really focus on areas they ordinarily wouldn't on a day-to-day basis. It is that intense focus that ultimately leads to the greatest growth as a designer and as a professional. At times it can be stressful, but collaborating with a group of extremely talented designers that are also great friends makes the journey a very pleasant one. Preparing for the program not only solidified the relationships of our team members, it also gave us an opportunity to develop new friendships with the numerous volunteers who so graciously helped us in the workroom. We are so grateful for all the wonderful experiences being a part of AIFD has afforded us over the years. It is so rewarding to be a part of such a close-knit, supportive group.
